Mike Mozenter of BizLogx from Columbus, Ohio is assisting Start Co. with the NJHSA Attack Jewish Poverty Challenge. Over the last 18 months, Mike has worked directly with the Network to help the Network develop its Center for Innovation and Research. As part of this effort, Mike has spoken with dozens of Network member leaders about their most innovative and impactful programming. Mike also conducted a workshop on Innovation at the Network's 2017 Executives' Conference. Mike has spent the last twenty years working with public and private organizations in the areas of innovation and entrepreneurship. Mike worked directly with the state of Ohio to develop, implement and measure the impact of the State's Third

Frontier Program, a multi-billion-dollar effort to revitalize Ohio's economy through the creation and growth of high-tech startups. Subsequently, as president of JumpStart America, Mike and his team partnered with the leaders of fifteen economically challenged areas of the country to help them develop, fund and implement plans to create or accelerate entrepreneurship-based economic development. Funded by the Economic Development Administration, several national foundations, and numerous regional public and private sources, JumpStart America catalyzed the investment of over $35 million in new funding for regional entrepreneurs and entrepreneurship in a five-year period. Mike continues to work with clients to drive success through the productive use of the tools of innovation and entrepreneurship.
