PROGRAM:

The JFS Board is in the process of adopting a three-year strategic plan, which the Director is responsible for implementing. This includes developing mission-aligned programs and creating systems for monitoring and evaluating their effectiveness. Current services include, but are not limited to case management, counseling, programming, transportation, client advocacy, employment assistance, volunteer development and community building. The Director is also responsible for the hiring, supervision, evaluation, and professional development of JFS staff.

ABOUT THE COMMUNITY:

Centrally located in the Piedmont region of North Carolina, Greensboro has a highly engaged Jewish community and a strong history of leadership and service to the broader community. The city is known for its longstanding commitment to civil rights and social justice, and boasts a friendly environment and an affordable, easygoing quality of life. Greensboro possesses an active Jewish Federation, an established Jewish Community Foundation, three Jewish congregations, a Jewish Day School, numerous museums, a new performing arts center and seven institutions of higher education.
